BIO

Haley is a first-year associate attorney admitted to practice in Virginia and was recently admitted to practice in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia. She joined Werther & Mills in September 2025 and previously worked at the firm as a summer associate in 2024. As a developing attorney, Haley values every opportunity to deepen her legal skills. She approaches each matter with attention to detail and a focus on achieving effective results for clients.

In 2022, Haley graduated magna cum laude with a BS in Criminal Justice from the L. Douglas Wilder School of Government and Public Affairs at Virginia Commonwealth University. She then obtained her J.D. from American University Washington College of Law in 2025, where she was a student attorney in the Janet R. Spragens Federal Tax Clinic and gained practical experience representing low income individuals who were being audited by the IRS. While in law school, Haley also served as a summer legal intern with the Office of the Commonwealth’s Attorney for Prince William County.

Since joining Werther & Mills, Haley has assisted in a jury trial involving patent infringement claims, as well as a three-week construction arbitration. She is working towards gaining litigation experience in many areas, ranging from breach of contract disputes to claims involving discrimination and harassment. Haley is dedicated to professional growth and appreciates the learning opportunities inherent in the early stages of practice.

Haley grew up in Northern Virginia where she attended Chantilly High School and currently lives in Arlington, Virginia. She has a strong interest in the sports industry and the evolving world of sports law, particularly related to college athletics and NIL implications.
